

Q
A

What is dentistry today?

Lairy W. Miller, D.D.S.

First Impressions Dentistry

315 West Kemper Road
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246
513-772-8840www.FirstImpressionsDentistry.com

My earliest recollection of the dentist as a small boy was going several floors upward in a tall downtown building on Walnut Street. Entering the tiny, cramped office, my mother approached the small sliding glass opening in the wall and proudly announced to the “nurse” that I had arrived. As I perused a Highlights magazine, the medicinal smell and the noise on the other side of the wall assured me there was no mistaking where I was or what was about to happen!

Today, a dentist’s office is open, spacious and pleasing to the senses. Spa-like environments offer soothing music, water features, candles, refreshment centers and plush upholstery. The staff greets, educates and offers excellent clinical skills. TVs, DVDs, massaging chairs and blankets await you. Reading material is more than just the traditional stack of magazines—a library of books is presented.

The doctor offers the latest technology by displaying your digital X-rays and imaging pictures right in front of your eyes. The doctor and staff will talk with you, show you an educational video and pamper you during every step of the procedure. Today’s dentistry is artistry. Patients benefit from advanced materials for composite restorations, porcelain crowns and absolutely “no pain” root canals. High-end cosmetic procedures such as veneers and bleaching enhance your smile. You will actually leave the office thinking “That was great!” and willingly schedule your next visit.

Gone is the day of trudging into the dreaded dental office! We are creating Smiles for Life!

Q&A

COSMETIC SURGERY & DENTISTRY